

Directions: Write the name or title of the character about whom this passage describes.

1. _____ Prone to excessive sorrow and showy weeping, I care for all creatures (the small, furry ones the best).
2. _____ I don't fancy the rules others place before me. I choose life's more spacious way. Hunting is my pleasure.
3. _____ Epicurian and hedonistic am I! I love my cake and wine. I make my household free to all the county. At my house it snows of meat and drink!
4. _____ Though there seemed to be no one busier, I am not as busy as I seem. The king has appointed me to specialize in property disputes.
5. _____ At night you can find me wooing my lover passionately or pressing my curls.
6. _____ I'm dripping with the accessories of my trade, but I'm a devout man with a St. Christopher medal around my neck.
7. _____ I've made history in various battles. I'm "true, perfect, and gentle."
8. _____ I know the names of all those I serve (especially the ladies). At the taverns I am known as one who can give you a good rate on confessionals.
9. _____ I spend what little money I do find on books even though some would say I should spend more on food or clothing.
10. _____ No one really knows my real name. Perhaps because I am so in debt. But you would not have known that if you had focused on my attire and stately manner or worldly conversation.
11. _____ I suggest that the pilgrimage become a story-telling contest.
12. _____ I suffer from face boils and am a lecherous lover. Garlic, and onions suit me best when I speak only Latin (for effect).
13. _____ We are described together. A group of artisans with wives who are benefiting from our work.
14. _____ The ample hips and space between my teeth indicate that I might be a good judge of matters of love, though on second thought, a bit unlucky as well.

15. _____ Making an elegant chicken stew is my forte; it's too bad I have an ulcer on my chin.
16. _____ The dagger on a strap around my neck gives some people pause. Many tempests have shaken my beard.
17. _____ I am the best example of a good and faithful laborer.
18. _____ My beard is as red as a fox. The tuft of hair on the tip of my nose is a physical indicator of my beastly nature. I steal corn - that's my skill.
19. _____ Astrology is my science of choice. I love gold best.
20. _____ A poor man in material goods, but rich in holy thoughts and works. Brother to the plowman.
21. _____ A careful buying and purchasing agent for a group of lawyers - I manipulate a lot for myself, of course.
22. _____ I'm the manager of a large estate - bad-tempered and skinny. People under me are afraid.
23. _____ My yellow hair is my favorite. I think it looks stylish as I ride my horse. Did I mention that I have phony relics to sell?
