

Julius Caesar Bell Ringers

Bell Ringer:

Please list “power-hungry” characters from popular fiction, films, television, or comic books. Based on your list, what generalizations can you make about the characters' personalities? Explain.

Bell Ringer:

What qualities make someone a good leader? Who do you know that has these qualities? Explain.

Bell Ringer:

A friend is trying to persuade you to do something that is both dangerous and illegal—to drive without a license. Your friend says he has to take care of an emergency, and this person knows you can drive, even though you are not allowed to do so legally. What will you do? What will you tell your friend? Explain.

Bell Ringer:

Do you think political leaders usually act in the best interest of their countries? Why or why not? Explain.

Bell Ringer:

If a political leader has done something wrong, do you think it is all right to get rid of him or her by whatever means necessary? Explain.

Bell Ringer:

No cause, political or otherwise, is worth dying for. Do you agree or disagree with this statement? Explain.

Bell Ringer:

In certain situations it may be justified for a political leader to bend or break the law for the good of the country. Do you agree or disagree? Explain.

Bell Ringer:

People should never compromise their ideals or beliefs. Do you agree or disagree? Explain.

Bell Ringer:

"The evil that men do lives after them; the good is [often buried] with their bones."
What do you think this quote means? Explain.

Bell Ringer:

How far would you go to stop a friend from harming your country? Explain.

Bell Ringer:

How would you like to be remembered after you're gone? What are 3 adjectives that you'd like people to use when describing you? Do you need to make any changes in your life for this to happen? Explain.